Saint John Cassian

(c. AD 360-435)

St. John Cassian was a monk and one of the Desert Fathers. He was born probably in Romania. The son of wealthy parents, he received a good education (his writings show the influence of Cicero and Persius). He was fluent in Latin and Greek.

After spending three years with hermits in the Holy Land, he spent at least fifteen years in Egypt with the Desert Fathers. He eventually left Egypt and spent time with St. John Chrysostom, who ordained him a Deacon. Finally he ended up in Western Europe near modern day France. He was asked by some bishops to share what he had learned in the desert. He wrote Conferences, which St. Benedict made required reading for all his monks.

St. John Cassian had a deep practical knowledge of the faith. He lived in many different places, and they all had an impact on the gift of what he was able to teach others.

Let us ask the Lord to use every area of our lives to bear fruit in love of God and neighbor.

St. John Cassian's Feast Day is July 23rd.
